EXON IDENTITY AND AMBIGUOUS TYPING COMBINATIONS

The use of Sequence Based Typing (SBT) as a method for defining the HLA type is well documented, most SBT typing strategies currently employed use the exon 2 and exon 3 sequences for HLA class I analysis and exon 2 alone for HLA class II analysis. Due to the heterozygous nature of the SBT analysis the combinations of many pairs of alleles may give an ambiguous typing result. This document includes a list of all alleles which are identical over exons 2+3 for HLA class I and exon 2 for HLA class II, in addition all ambiguous results obtained when using all alleles in the current release.

From 01 April 2010, all groups of HLA alleles that have identical nucleotide sequences across the exons encoding the peptide binding domains (exon 2 and 3 for HLA class I and exon 2 only for HLA class II alleles) are designated by an upper case 'G' which follows the three-field allele designation of the lowest numbered allele in the group.

The algorithm used to generate the G groups does include alleles that contain unsequenced regions. For these alleles the sequence of an alternate allele has been used to extend the sequence over this region. Where possible a genomic or silent variant of the unsequenced allele is used. When this is not possible an alternate allele from within the same first field group is used and only used when there is a high probability that the sequence used would be shown to be correct if the region was fully sequenced. The list of alleles containing unsequenced regions and the alternate alleles used to infer the missing sequence are detailed in this document. We recognise that future sequencing of unsequenced regions may reveal disparity between the predicted sequence and the newly sequenced region. We therefore welcome any further information, which will help improve analysis of these regions.

The generation of G groups and ambiguous combinations of DRB alleles has been extended to include the complete sequences of exon 2. Previous versions contained only the sequence from nucleotides 101 to 356 due to a polymorphism at position 357 that could not be accurately predicted. Phylogenetic analysis of the increased number of DRB exon 2 sequences has been used to allow us to predict this position in alleles that are unsequenced for position 357. The extension of the sequence analysed has meant that a number of G groups previously assigned are no longer present in the output due to polymorphisms found between nucleotides 357 to 370. The following groups are no longer listed in the DRB tables as they now contain only a single allele. The identification of new alleles may cause these groups to be included in the tables again at a later date.

Previous versions of this analysis also omitted DQB1*06:06 from the analysis. This allele is now included into the analysis, following phylogenetic and sequence analysis to aid in predicting the unsequenced regions.

Alleles extended due to unsequenced regions

The following alleles do not contain the complete exon 2 sequence. For these alleles, the sequence of an alternate allele has been used to extend the sequence to cover this region.

Alleles extended due to unsequenced regions

The following alleles do not contain the complete exon 2 sequence. For these alleles, the sequence of an alternate allele has been used to extend the sequence to cover this region.
